OBITUARY

On Saturday morning the remains of a very estimable young gentleman were laid in their last resting place in the Cemetery. We allude to Mr. E. FARDELL (the brother of Mr. J. W. FARDELL, the well-known and respected solicitor and clerk to the county and borough magistrates). The face of the deceased gentleman must have been familiar with our townsmen as he was associated with his brother, and assisted him frequently in the performance of his duties. Inflammation of the lungs, proceeding from a cold caught by sitting on the grass on Whit Monday, created some alarm at first, but, under skilful treatment, it was thought all danger had passed, when he suddenly passed away while talking to a friend. Great sympathy has been felt for the Rev. J. FARDELL (the father of the deceased) and with Mr. J. W. FARDELL in their bereavement.

NB: It has been noted that the newspaper report gave the name as "E. FARDELL", whereas the intial should have been "G", an easy mistake when the spoken word was taken into account.
