DEATH OF MRS. E. RATCLIFFE

Another link with the past has been severed by the death of Mrs. Edgar RATCLIFFE of Corstorphine Lodge, a lady who has been for many years resident in Ryde, and who passed to her rest on Tuesday last at a ripe old age. Mrs. RATCLIFFE was the widow of Dr. LIND, a gentleman who possessed extensive property in the town, and after whom one of the principal streets was named. He was for many years the chairman of the local magistrates and of the Ryde Pier

Company. Ryde is indebted to Dr. LIND and his family for many benefits, not the least being the land on which Trinity Church now stands. His widow subsequently married a brother of that well-known gentleman, Mr. W. W. RATCLIFFE, C.C., whom she has survived several years. The great age of the deceased lady has compelled her to lead a very retired life for many years past, but many will have good reason to deeply regret her loss, as she was always very kind and charitable.
