

ISLE OF WIGHT OBSERVER Saturday 17th October 1891

DEATH OF MRS. JONES. - We much regret to record the death of Mrs Jones, the widow of the late Mr J.G. JONES, whose musical attainments were in great repute, not only in Ryde, but throughout the country. After the death of her esteemed husband, Mrs JONES continued the business he established in Union Street, but advancing age and declining health led her to dispose of it a few weeks ago, and she proposed to spend her remaining years in retirement at Rupert House, St Thomas's Street. She had, however, scarcely removed to her new home when she was attacked by serious illness, to which she succumbed on Wednesday. We feel sure our fellow townsmen share our sympathy with the family under their sad bereavement. Mrs JONES was a most aimiable woman, and very generally respected.

Researched & typed by
Ann Barrett
Margaret Truckel