

ISLE OF WIGHT OBSERVER, Saturday 4th July 1885

SUDDEN DEATH - On Monday morning a young man named BRAINE, who got his living by doing odd jobs at the Garfield Home, died very suddenly. Amongst other avocations he was organ blower at the Wesleyan Chapel, and was on his way there to help the organist on the occasion of a wedding when he suddenly became very ill, and expired while the wedding at which he was to have played his humble part was proceeding. He had for a long time been in a very delicate state of health, and the Coroner has not thought it necessary to hold an inquest.

Researched & typed by
Ann Barrett
Val Minns