

ISLE OF WIGHT OBSERVER Saturday 25th January 1890

Mr J. REDMAN, a well-known Ryde cabman, was suddenly siezed with hemorrhage, in the street, on Thursday evening. He was conveyed to the Infirmary, but died shortly after addmission. REDMAN was a stout plethoric man, and no doubt broke a blood vessel while coughing.

Researched by
Ann Barrett